CTO Telecom Summit Partners with Telecom Council of Silicon Valley

May 3, 2011 – The CTO Telecom Summit team announced today that it has formed a strategic partnership with the Telecom Council of Silicon Valley, a business tool that connects companies and individuals involved in the region's communications technology industry with one another to speed up the business development and innovation processes – helping push the industry forward.

Telecom Council members include the top ten global carriers, including China Mobile, AT&T, and Verizon Wireless as well as vendors such as Huawei, Qualcomm and Intel; venture capitalists such as Norwest Venture Partners, Battery Ventures and Motorola Ventures; and countless startups.

The CTO Telecom Summit, September 18-21, 2011, brings together CTOs, IT executives and solution providers to share best practices, discuss industry trends, and make new business contacts. Agenda topics to be discussed at the event include utilizing open source solutions for a competitive edge, trends and challenges around IT outsourcing, the emerging wireless transformation, and driving organizational growth with cloud computing.

The Telecom Council of Silicon Valley provides the network, tools, framework, and meetings to bring together the industry's local critical mass of wireless and fixed telecom companies, research, ideas, capital, and human expertise to create a hub for local telecom professionals and increase their global visibility.

The Telecom Council of Silicon Valley was also a partner for the March 2011 CIO Summit.

“The Telecom Council of Silicon Valley has similar goals to that of the CTO Telecom Summit – to bring industry professionals and executives together to connect, exchange information and form valuable business relationships. I look forward to working with them for the upcoming event,” said Ross Abbott, Event Director, CTO Telecom Summit.
