Crudgington will lead a think tank discussion on “Security in an Outsourced World” at the Houston summits, with a number of takeaways.

Takeaways include:

- Social, mobile, cloud and analytics are already having a significant impact on enterprise security with sourcing potentially adding another layer of complexity
- Beyond “simple” security, however, there are also issues such as privacy and compliance that also need to be considered
- Investing in the right tools and practices is essential to weathering the storm without breaking the bank
