CIO Summit Brings Together CIOs from Kaiser Permanente, Allegheny Energy, and Conway Freight to Address CIO Priorities & Industry Issues

June 7, 2010 –The CIO Summit team is pleased to announce that the following technology executives will be attending the upcoming technology event: Jim Crawford, VP & Southern California BIO, Kaiser Permanente; Rick Arthur, VP & CIO, Allegheny Energy; Jackie Barretta, CIO, Con-way Freight; and Larry Bonfante, CIO, U.S. Tennis Association. The CIO Summit will be hosted November 7-10, 2010 in Scottsdale, Arizona. Event details can be found at www.ciosummit.us.

The CIO Summit will gather CIOs, IT executives and analysts to learn about the latest technology topics and trends. Attending CIOs will represent multiple industries, including healthcare, transportation, retail, utilities and more. The CIO Summit is a chance for CIOs and IT executives to network with their peers and participate in strategy-driven agenda sessions, including panel discussions, workshops, case studies and keynote presentations. A few of the agenda topics to be addressed at the upcoming CIO Summit:

- Managing Technology through Times of Mergers and Acquisitions
- Virtualization – What’s Behind the IT Strategy?
- The Evolving Role of the CIO

“The CIO Summit will be a great opportunity for executives to network and discuss the business technology issues that are currently affecting their organizations. In this current competitive environment, it’s important for executives to share ideas and learn about new technologies that could potentially solve the IT issue that they’ve been dealing with,” said Glenn Willis, EVP, CIO Summit.
