Open Text Shares Content Management Insights with CIO Healthcare Summit Attendees

June 7, 2010 - Although the CIO Healthcare Summit wrapped successfully in May, the learning continues for CIOs and IT executives. The content management experts at Open Text have shared valuable resources on electronic medical records, electronic health records, and more on the event's website, www.ciohealthcaresummit.com.

The CIO Healthcare Summit was held May 9-12 at the InterContinental Montelucia Resort in Scottsdale, Arizona. The technology event brought together CIOs, IT innovators, and analysts from top healthcare organizations in North America to network and attend educational sessions on the latest IT topics and trends.

At this year's event, Open Text presented a well-received thought-leadership session, "Portals: Enabling Physicians to Make Informed Decisions Spanning the Enterprise to Access Legacy Systems." The presentation outlined how a physician's portal can streamline clinical and administrative tasks for physicians, while ensuring regulatory compliance and enhancing physician satisfaction.

Additional Open Text assets, which include videos, white papers, case studies and podcasts, explore integrated document management, creating greater efficiencies with enterprise content management, and creating value from content. Open Text's recent webinar, "Getting the Most from Your EMR/EHR Solution," which includes a presentation by Peter Waegemann, VP, mHealth Initiative Inc., is also included on the site.

Open Text has two decades of experience helping organizations overcome the challenges associated with managing and gaining the true value of their business content, and has a keen understanding of how content flows throughout an enterprise. To access the above mentioned Open Text resources, please visit <http://www.ciohealthcaresummit.com/contentmanagement/>.

If you are interested in participating in the next CIO Healthcare Summit, December 12-15, 2010, please contact Nick Backhouse, Event Director, CIO Healthcare Summit, at 808-694-3652 or nick.backhouse@cdmmedia.com.
