Tech Event Agenda Shines Spotlight on Innovative Health IT Leaders

September 8, 2010 - The CIO Healthcare Summit team invites CIOs and Senior IT Executives from national healthcare organizations to participate in the upcoming technology event as a speaker or panelist. Qualified presenters will receive complimentary airfare, accommodations, food and drink for the duration of the event, as well as full access to all agenda sessions and networking opportunities. If you are interested in participating in the event's agenda, please visit <http://www.ciohealthcaresummit.com/callforspeakers/>.

To be held December 12-15, 2010 in Scottsdale, Arizona, the CIO Healthcare Summit brings together analysts, solution providers and more than 50 CIOs from top U.S. healthcare organizations to attend educational sessions, connect with old colleagues, and make new business contacts. The event's agenda is strategically designed to ensure that attendees engage in critical conversations and learn about the latest healthcare technology topics and trends.

Executives who participate in the CIO Healthcare Summit agenda have the opportunity to present recent IT research, as well as discuss IT project successes and failures. Agenda sessions include panel discussions, case studies, keynote speeches and analyst Q&A sessions.

"The CIO Healthcare Summit agenda is an excellent opportunity for CIOs and IT leaders to shine the spotlight on the achievements of their IT departments and healthcare organizations. Speakers and panelists will quickly establish themselves as innovative technology leaders among a group of their peers," said Mark Southam, Event Director, CIO Healthcare Summit.
