October 12, 2010 – The CIO Insurance Summit announced today the newly confirmed delegates who will be attending the upcoming technology event, October 17-20, 2010 in Scottsdale, Arizona. New attendees include: Mary Boyd, CAO, Ace Group; Mark Berthiaume, SVP & CIO, Chubb Insurance; Stuart Tainsky, SVP & CIO, Pure Insurance; Teresa Mencil, CIO, Property and Casualty Division, HCC; and Cindy Warkentin, CIO, MAIF Insurance.

The CIO Insurance Summit is an opportunity for technology executives from the insurance industry to network and discuss the latest IT topics and trends, including deployment challenges within a global claims environment, redefining the agent and customer experience, the role of knowledge management in IT, and improving IT decision architecture.

“I am really excited about the high level of delegates who will be attending this year’s event. These executives are all innovative leaders at their organizations and are sure to bring great ideas and opinions, as well as an extraordinary amount of experience to the event’s educational sessions and networking opportunities,” said Mark Southam, Event Director, CIO Insurance Summit.

Xpertdoc, a leader in document output automation, will also be present at the event. A company representative will be leading the much-anticipated CIO Thought-Leadership session, “The Coming Insurance IT Gamble -- Can You Afford To Miss?” This session will outline the current changes insurance organizations are facing and how a solid enterprise infrastructure can be a cornerstone for a future-proofed communication strategy.

Another anticipated agenda session is, “Digital Collaboration is the Key to Transforming the Insurance Enterprise,” which will be presented by a representative from Mitrastech, which provides market-leading collaborative accountability applications for businesses and their trusted partners.
