CIO Healthcare Summit Renews Partnership with CarePrecise

December 10, 2010 – The CIO Healthcare Summit team announced today that it has renewed its strategic partnership with CarePrecise, an organization that develops data products and services, and conducts research and analysis related to healthcare services distribution and provider networks. CarePrecise also partnered with the CIO Healthcare Summit for the 2010 technology event.

The CIO Healthcare Summit, April 3-6, 2011, will bring together CIOs, technology executives, analysts and solution providers to discuss the latest healthcare topics and trends. This year's strategic agenda will focus on the road to Meaningful Use and will include CIO think tanks, open forums, analyst Q&A sessions, and panel discussions. Educational sessions at the event are designed to encourage open communication among attendees, allowing them to share ideas, best practices and IT project successes and failures.

Other topics to be discussed at the event include mobility and patient care, security considerations for Meaningful Use, the Consumer Health Movement, healthcare and cloud computing, and the future of Electronic Health Records.

In addition to data and services, CarePrecise also provides Web design, development and hosting services for healthcare IT companies and provider practices. CarePrecise, which serves a number of large healthcare organizations as well as individual practitioners, has established itself as a trusted processor of provider data products based on the National Plan & Provider Enumeration System and other federal data resources.

"CarePrecise is a leader in healthcare data and I'm pleased to be partnering with them again for the upcoming CIO Healthcare Summit. The content and services that the Company provides will be a great resource for the CIOs and technology executives in attendance at the event," said Mark Southam, Event Director, CIO Healthcare Summit.
