CDM Media Announces a Call For Speakers for Q4 2014 Summits!

CHICAGO, July 16, 2014 – CDM Media, the leading B2B Marketing and Media Firm, announced today that they are now accepting speaker applications for their summits taking place during October, November and December 2014. Their impressive events plan covers a number of different geographies, industries, and subject matters which are front of mind for C-Suite executives in today’s ever changing organizational landscapes.

Designed by Content Committees, CDM Media’s summit agendas balance networking, thought leadership, one-on-one meetings and relationship building. Differing vastly from the impersonal tradeshow floor, summits are attended by around 50 C-Suite executive attendees from Fortune 1000 companies – creating an intimate environment where sessions are interactive and attendees are very comfortable in sharing their experiences and proven best practices.

“One of the capabilities that is becoming increasingly more relevant for executive development is the ability to speak publicly; to cogently form an opinion around a critical issue, and then engage an audience in a thoughtful and inspirational presentation and discussion,” explains James Quin, Senior Director of Content and C-Suite Communities at CDM Media. “As a result, taking a speaking role at one of our Summits is a fantastic opportunity for CIOs, CMOs, CISOs, and other IT executives to not only share the power and value of their own experiences with their peers, but to actively invest in their own career development. It’s an opportunity that organizationally we are happy to extend, and that I personally am excited about.”
